profit entities, especially by accountants. Unlike a conventional business, a non-profit company's main aim isn't to make lots of money. Instead these entities are often charities or small clubs. They handle money, such as donations and membership fees, but in a different way to a for-profit business.

Accountants often refer to businesses as for-profit entities and to nonprofit organizations as not-for-profit entities, or NFPs. We will be using the more common term nonprofit instead of not-for-profit. Again, this is a very brief introduction to nonprofit accounting. There are many different types of nonprofits, including governmental nonprofits, which we will not address.
